About HumanitiesDC:

HumanitiesDC is the State Humanities Council for Washington, DC, and local affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Founded in 1980, the Humanities Council of Washington, DC (HumanitiesDC) aims to enrich the quality of life, foster intellectual stimulation, and promote cross-cultural understanding and appreciation of local history in all neighborhoods of the District through humanities programs and grants.

Partnership Grant (For Public Projects Created Using Existing Oral History Collections) Request for Proposals

Diversity and inclusion are fundamental to the mission of HumanitiesDC. For 40 years HumanitiesDC has been committed to amplifying the wide-ranging voices and perspectives of the District. As a grantmaking organization, it is our responsibility to justly promote, encourage, and support our diverse community. To deepen our commitment to honoring our city's rich cultural heritage, HumanitiesDC has committed to revisit our practices to ensure they are fair, equitable, and inclusive.

About the DC Oral History Collaborative:

The DC Oral History Collaborative (DCOHC) is a partnership between HumanitiesDC and the DC Public Library. DCOHC was created in 2017 as an ambitious city-wide initiative aimed at documenting and preserving the history of Washington's residents and communities through oral history. The Collaborative is a multi-faceted program that includes grantmaking, training, and public projects.

What is Oral History:

"[Oral history is] distinguished from other forms of interviews by its content and extent. Oral history interviews seek an in-depth account of personal experience and reflections, with sufficient time allowed for the narrators to give their story the fullness they desire. The content of oral history interviews is grounded in reflections on the past as opposed to commentary on purely contemporary events."¹

Summary:

This opportunity provides funding to community organizations and individuals ("partners") interested in bringing EXISTING oral history collections out of the archives to produce public humanities projects. Potential projects may focus on neighborhoods, social organizations, political history, labor, faith-based groups, cultural trends, historic events, or other themes that can draw on one or more collections of oral histories. All projects must be thematically focused on Washington, DC and must benefit the residents of Washington, DC.

Potential projects may include: exhibitions, listening stations, written research, film/video, curricula for K-12 and higher education, websites, and computer applications based on and directly using existing oral history collections.

Partnership Grant (For Public Projects Created Using Existing Oral History Collections) Request for Proposals

Selected partners will work in conjunction with staff from the DC Oral History Collaborative throughout the course of their projects.

Please note that this grant does not cover the cost of collecting NEW oral history interviews.

Applications that do not identify an existing collection to be interpreted will not be considered.

Funding Scope:

Successful applications will propose projects that bring existing oral history interviews about Washington, DC's life, history and culture out of libraries, archives, and personal collections, and into the public view. Proposals must identify which oral history collections will be used, where they are located, how those oral history interviews will be accessed, which audience(s) the project will reach, and which theme, focus, or research question they aim to illuminate.

Other Required Proposal Elements:

- Identification of the project's Washington, DC Ward(s) served.
- A letter of support from the project's fiscal sponsor, if different than the organization or individual carrying out the project.
- A description of the key personnel who will work on the project.

- An outreach strategy for the project.
- A budget (in the provided template), and a budget narrative.

Common Characteristics of Successful Proposals:

- Will clearly indicate which EXISTING oral history interviews will be used to create the public project, where they can be found, and how they will be accessed. Successful projects will NOT propose creating a new oral history project for use in an interpretive work.
- Will demonstrate a deep understanding of the subject matter to be explored and the expected primary audience for the project.
- Will describe, in detail, how audiences or users will engage with the proposed public project or event.

Partnership Grant (For Public Projects Created Using Existing Oral History Collections) Request for Proposals

Technical Assistance Workshops:

HumanitiesDC schedules technical grants assistance workshops for prospective applicants prior to the deadline for each cycle. These workshops may be conducted via live webinars and will be made available on our website. These workshops, led by HumanitiesDC grants staff, provide information on grant qualifications, grant writing best practices, and navigation of the online grants portal. HumanitiesDC staff will not write applications for prospective applicants but will provide feedback on drafts. To request feedback, applicants must send a request by email to the grants staff member listed on the RFP no less than two weeks before the deadline. The technical grants assistance workshops are free and open to the public, but applicants are strongly encouraged to register via Eventbrite before attending. As the workshops are scheduled, the dates, times, locations, and registration links will be available on our website at <https://www.wdchumanities.org>.

Application Review Process:

Qualified applications are submitted to a review panel comprised of Washington, DC residents with backgrounds and/or experience in humanities programming or scholarship. These panelists score the proposals assigned to them based on an established rubric that closely aligns with the questions in the application. After the reading and scoring period, panelists convene in person to discuss the merits and deficiencies of the applications in their cohort and to finalize their rankings under the guidance of HumanitiesDC grants staff and board members. All panelists, staff and board members are expected to remain

The rankings presented by the panelists are adjusted according to thematic, geographic, and audience diversity by the HumanitiesDC grants staff and a final slate of proposed projects are submitted to the HumanitiesDC board for approval.
