Partnership Grant (For New Oral History Projects) Request for Proposals

About HumanitiesDC:

HumanitiesDC is the State Humanities Council for Washington, DC, and local affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Founded in 1980, the Humanities Council of Washington, DC (HumanitiesDC) aims to enrich the quality of life, foster intellectual stimulation, and promote cross-cultural understanding and appreciation of local history in all neighborhoods of the District through humanities programs and grants.

Diversity and inclusion are fundamental to the mission of HumanitiesDC. For 40 years HumanitiesDC has been committed to amplifying the wide-ranging voices and perspectives of the District. As a grantmaking organization, it is our responsibility to justly promote, encourage, and support our diverse community. To deepen our commitment to honoring our city's rich cultural heritage, HumanitiesDC has committed to revisiting our practices to ensure they are fair, equitable, and inclusive.

About the DC Oral History Collaborative:

The DC Oral History Collaborative (DCOHC) is a partnership between HumanitiesDC and the DC Public Library. DCOHC was created in 2017 as an ambitious city-wide initiative aimed at documenting and preserving the history of Washington's residents and communities through oral history. The Collaborative is a multi-faceted program that includes grantmaking, training, and public projects.

What is Oral History:

"[Oral history is] distinguished from other forms of interviews by its content and extent. Oral history interviews seek an in-depth account of personal experience and reflections, with sufficient time allowed for the narrators to give their story the fullness they desire. The content of oral history interviews is grounded in reflections on the past as opposed to commentary on purely contemporary events."¹

Summary:

Help us preserve the unique stories of Washington, DC residents! This opportunity provides financial and capacity building resources to community organizations and individuals ("partners") interested in conducting oral history projects. Potential projects may focus on: neighborhoods, social organizations, political history, labor, faith-based groups, cultural trends, historic events, or other themes that lend themselves to oral history as a tool for research and preservation.

Partnership Grant (For New Oral History Projects) Request for Proposals

Selected partners will be required to attend a three-session Oral History training workshop and will work in conjunction with staff and consultants from the DC Oral History Collaborative throughout the course of their projects.

Funding Scope:

Successful applications will propose projects that explore Washington, DC's life, history and culture through interviews with the people who have lived it. Projects should have a theme, focus or research question they aim to illuminate and must commit to interviewing at least five people. The final product for each project will be a set of well documented recordings accompanied by: interview descriptions, narrator biographical statements, transcripts, legal release forms, time-stamped indexes, metadata forms, and narrator photographs necessary for inclusion in the DC Public Library's Special Collections.² The legal release form signed by each interviewee will assign copyright to the DC Public Library, however the interviewee will retain non-exclusive rights to copy, use, and publish their oral history in part or in full during their lifetime.

Partnering with the DC Oral History Collaborative – The Collaborative strives to make oral history and this funding opportunity as accessible as possible. Key to this is the participation of ALL project directors in regular check-in and information-sharing meetings, professional development and capacity-building workshops, and networking opportunities. Prior experience with oral history is not required and every awarded project director participates in a required oral history training workshop.

Directors of funded projects will work closely with the HDC staff to promote their events and activities. DCOHC team members at HDC and at DCPL are available to give advice and feedback on project activities and guide the preparation and delivery of the interviews and their accompanying documentation.

Translation Enhancements – As part of the effort to make the collected interviews as accessible as possible a limited pool of funds has been created to support translation of oral history transcripts. Grant applicants will be able to request up to an additional $5,000 to translate the transcriptions of the oral histories they record as part of their grant project. Grant recipients may request these funds to either translate transcripts into English or to translate English transcripts into a language that will make the interviews more accessible to their narrators' communities. A request for a translation enhancement will neither negatively nor positively affect the competitiveness an applicant's overall proposal. Acceptance of an applicant's proposal does not guarantee the acceptance of the applicant's request for a translation enhancement.

Other Required Proposal Elements:

- Identification of the project's Washington, DC Ward(s) served.
- A letter of support from the project's fiscal sponsor, if different than the organization or individual carrying out the project.
- A description of the key personnel who will work on the project.
- A timeline of project activities and milestones covering the full grant cycle.
- An outreach strategy for the project.
- A budget (in a provided template), and a budget narrative.
- A detailed plan for complying with relevant provisions of the Americans with Disabilities Act. (Required for organizations with 15 or more full-time employees.)

You will also be asked to provide expected audience data – this is for informational purposes only and is used for reporting to HDC's funders.

Common Characteristics of Successful Proposals:

- Will clearly identify the research question driving the oral history inquiry. This question will go beyond the importance of collecting and archiving stories. (e.g. "What stories about community gardening are important to preserve?" becomes "How did the practice of community gardening change or evolve as gentrification took hold in Washington?")
- Will demonstrate a deep understanding of the subject matter to be explored and a connectedness to relevant communities that will lend itself to the recruitment of narrators (interviewees).
- Will not propose collecting oral histories that have already been recorded and archived.
- Will demonstrate that the narrators to be interviewed and their communities will be substantively engaged in the development of the project.

By submitting a proposal, applicants certify that they or their fiscal sponsors are in compliance with all relevant eligibility requirements. Awarded applicants may be asked at any time during the grant period to provide proof of eligibility. Any awardees found to be ineligible after the award date will be required to return all grant funds to HDC.

Fiscal Sponsorship:

Organizations without 501c3 non-profit status may apply through an organization serving as a fiscal sponsor provided that the fiscal sponsor organization meets all eligibility requirements in this RFP. Individuals may also apply through a fiscal sponsor. Under this arrangement, the fiscal sponsor organization takes on all financial and legal obligations of the grant award. Fiscal sponsors may support no more than three grant programs at a time. Applicants applying through fiscal sponsors must use the fiscal sponsor's organization account within the HumanitiesDC grants portal to submit their application. If the fiscal sponsor does not have an account, an authorized official from the fiscal sponsor organization must create one.

HumanitiesDC will endeavor to work primarily with the team conducting the project, however, because fiscal sponsor organizations have fiduciary and financial responsibility for the grants they support it will be necessary, at times, for representatives from the fiscal sponsor organization to review and sign off on financial documents or grant agreements.

Allowable Costs:

100% of awarded grant funds must be applied to direct program costs. This may include salary, consulting fees, and/or honoraria for individuals working on the project, but cannot include indirect costs, overhead, rent, utilities, or administrative fees. Examples of Allowable Costs:

- Transcription Services
- Project supplies and equipment
- Venue rental fees (including for a program to share interviews back with the community)

Accessibility and ADA Compliance:

All organizational applicants must comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. The ADA provides civil rights protection to individuals with disabilities in the areas of employment, services rendered by state and local government, places of public accommodation, transportation and telecommunication services. Organizations funded by HumanitiesDC must make reasonable accommodations to ensure that people with disabilities have equal physical and communications access as defined by federal law.

Partnership Grant (For New Oral History Projects) Request for Proposals

In addition to detailed plans for its compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) (42 U.S.C § 12101 et seq.), each applicant must demonstrate how the project will be inclusive, diverse, equitable and accessible throughout the District of Columbia, beyond participants with disabilities. Successful applications will consider a broad definition of “accessibility” by addressing financial, geographic, demographic, cultural and developmental access. For more information, applicants may access the complete text of the ADA here: <https://www.law.cornell.edu/uscode/text/42/12101>. Note that neither HumanitiesDC nor the District of Columbia government represent that this link leads to the latest version of the subject law.

Technical Assistance Workshops:

HumanitiesDC schedules technical grants assistance workshops for prospective applicants prior to the deadline for each cycle. These workshops may be conducted via live webinars and will be made available on our website. These workshops, led by HumanitiesDC grants staff, provide information on grant qualifications, grant writing best practices, and navigation of the online grants portal. HumanitiesDC staff will not write applications for prospective applicants but will provide feedback on drafts. To request feedback, applicants must send a request by email to the grants staff member listed on the RFP no less than two weeks before the deadline. The technical grants assistance workshops are free and open to the public, but applicants are strongly encouraged to register via Eventbrite before attending. As the workshops are scheduled, the dates, times, locations, and registration links will be available on our website at <https://www.wdchumanities.org>.

Application Review Process:

Qualified applications are submitted to a review panel comprised of Washington, DC residents with backgrounds and/or experience in humanities programming or scholarship. These panelists score the proposals assigned to them based on an established rubric that closely aligns with the questions in the application. After the reading and scoring period, panelists convene in person to discuss the merits and deficiencies of the applications in their cohort and to finalize their rankings under the guidance of HumanitiesDC grants staff and board members. All panelists, staff and board members are expected to remain impartial as they undertake their respective parts in the evaluation process. HumanitiesDC requires that all involved recuse themselves from review of any application that presents a personal or professional conflict of interest, and panelists must sign a statement acknowledging that they will adhere to this policy.

The rankings presented by the panelists are adjusted according to thematic, geographic, and audience diversity by the HumanitiesDC grants staff and a final slate of proposed projects are submitted to the HumanitiesDC board for approval.
